

Kunik Cheese Review - Esquire Cheese Of The Week Kunik

The Cheese: Kunik

Pasteurized goat and cow's milk

Nettle Meadow Farm Warrensburg, New York

Kunik. It may very well be the sexiest cheese in the U.S.A.

Made from a blend of goats' milk and rich Jersey cream, it's the kind of cheese that'll make you (or more importantly, your girlfriend) swoon. This fluffy-rinded, triple creme delight is a product of Nettle Meadow Farm, nestled in the southeast corner of the Adirondacks. Pop open a bottle of bubbly, slice off a wedge of buttery Kunik, and watch the sparks fly. Goats have never been so sexy.

To get your hands on a chunk of this delicious cheese, click here and enjoy a 10 percent discount on the small-size Cheesemonger's Choice Selection, featuring Kunik. Just enter the coupon code 'Esquire' to get 10 percent off. This week only! Offer expires May 18 — when the next Cheese of the Week appears on this blog.

Anne Saxelby is the owner of Saxelby Cheesemongers in New York City. She knows everything about cheese, and she is always cheerful.

Follow us on Twitter »

— <http://lab.arc90.com/experiments/readability>